Early Life and Influences

Born into a wealthy family, Cross initially pursued a career in law. However, his passion for art ignited at a young age. He studied under the renowned academic painter Émile Bin in Paris and was profoundly influenced by the Impressionists, particularly Georges Seurat. Seurat's groundbreaking pointillism technique, where tiny dots of pure color are meticulously placed to create a cohesive image, captivated Cross.

Neo-Impressionist Master

Cross wholeheartedly embraced Neo-Impressionism, becoming one of its leading practitioners. He refined Seurat's technique, creating vibrant and luminous compositions that shimmered with color. His pointillist style allowed him to achieve a remarkable sense of depth and atmosphere.

Cross's paintings often depicted serene landscapes, capturing the play of light and shadow on water and vegetation. His use of pure, unmixed colors resulted in a radiant and vibrant effect that set his work apart from his contemporaries.

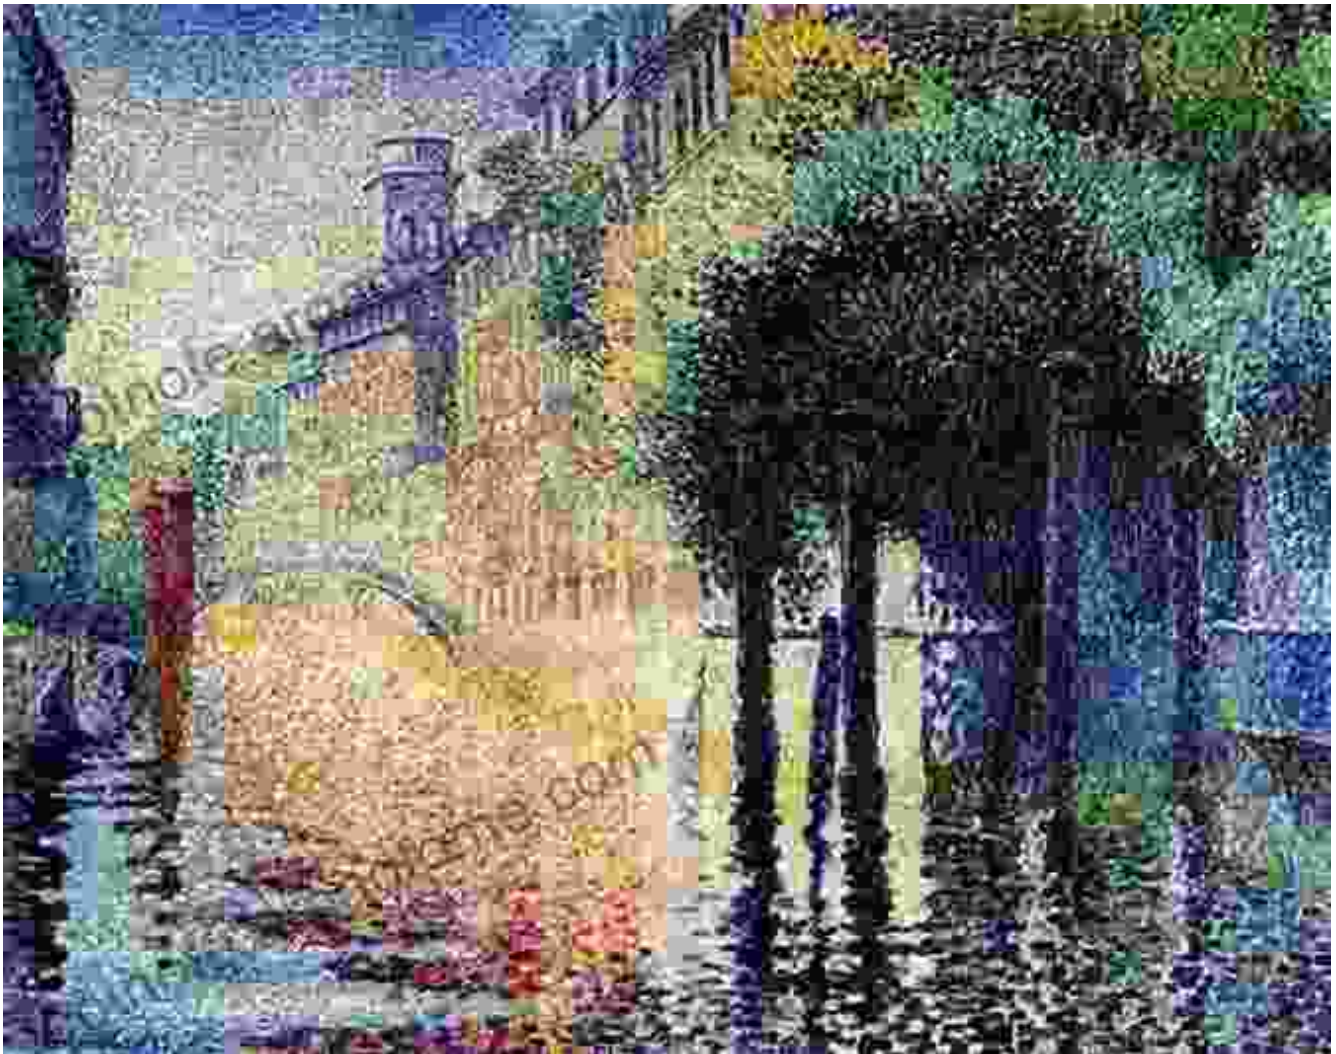

Paintings and Drawings

Cross's paintings are characterized by their harmonious color schemes and meticulous application of pointillism. His landscapes, such as "Bathers by the Seine" and "The Banks of the Marne," evoke a sense of tranquility and idyllic beauty.

In addition to his paintings, Cross also produced numerous drawings, which showcased his mastery of line and form. His drawings often explored the human figure and captured the essence of movement and emotion with a few deft strokes.
