The Historical Origins of the Gabriel Horn

The Gabriel Horn, also known as Gjallarhorn, traces its origins to Norse mythology. In the ancient myths, Gjallarhorn was a powerful horn possessed by the god Heimdallr. According to legend, Heimdallr was tasked with guarding the Bifrost Bridge, the rainbow bridge that connected the realm of Asgard, home of the gods, to Midgard, the realm of humans. Gjallarhorn served as Heimdallr's instrument of warning, a mighty horn that could be heard throughout the nine worlds when blown.
